In 2018, the company went through a full rebrand to the HiFlow Solutions brand used today. About a year later, the company ventured into the North American market, moving its headquarters to Miami, Florida, in January 2019. For several years, HiFlow adapted its software to this new market and established its support network in North America, officially launching its US version of HiFlow 4.0 in 2022.

The 4.0 HiFlow software featured a completely new internet browser interface, machine communication, new packaging design and imposition modules, and visual dashboards.

This year, HiFlow Solutions became a Microsoft AI Cloud Partner and launching new AI capabilities within its ERP system.

Today, HiFlow Solutions has grown into a full-scale ERP/MIS and MES platform, employing nearly 100 developers and consultants, with more than 130 system installs, used by more than 6,800 professionals worldwide.
